

and the standard of strength, quality, and purity of the said article was not declared on the container thereof.

The Ideal Carbolic Salve was alleged to be adulterated in that its strength and purity fell below the professed standard and quality under which it was sold, and so fell below in that said article was represented to be antiseptic and was not antiseptic.

The Ideal Unguentum was alleged to be misbranded (a) in that the statements on its label, to wit, "Unguentum", "Antiseptic", and "Contains * * * Ammonium Sulphoichthyolate", represented that it was unguentum as defined in the United States Pharmacopoeia, that it was antiseptic, and that it contained ammonium sulphoichthyolate, and that the aforesaid statements were false and misleading in that the article was not unguentum as so defined, was not antiseptic, and did not contain ammonium sulphoichthyolate; and (b) in that there appeared on the label of the jars of the article statements that it was effective, among other things, as a treatment, remedy, and cure for boils, pimples, piles, eczema, and ulcers; and effective as a healing agent; and that the aforesaid statements were false and fraudulent.

The Ideal Carbolic Salve was alleged to be misbranded in that the statements borne on its labels, to wit, "Antiseptic" and "directions", represented that said article was antiseptic when used as directed, and that the aforesaid statements were false and misleading.

On December 12, 1935, a plea of guilty was entered and a fine of $42 was imposed.

25385. Misbranding of Tipona Tablets. U. S. v. Hi-Test Laboratories. Plea of nolo contendere. Fine, $50 and costs. (F. & D. no. 33968. Sample no. 4256-B.)

Unwarranted curative and therapeutic claims were made for this article and its label misrepresented its ingredients and falsely represented that the article could be administered safely.

On July 24, 1935, the United States attorney for the Northern District of Ohio, acting upon a report by the Secretary of Agriculture, filed in the district court an information against the Hi-Test Laboratories, a corporation, Cleveland, Ohio, alleging shipment by it under the name of Maison Laboratories, in violation of the Food and Drugs Act as amended, on or about July 3, 1934, from Cleveland, Ohio, to St. Louis, Mo., of certain quantities of Tipona Tablets which were misbranded. The article was labeled in part: (Carton and envelope) "Tipona Tablets A proven Way of Attaining Slenderness Easily, Surely and Safely * * * The Tipona Company Cleveland, O."

Analysis showed that the article consisted essentially of phenolphthalein, (1 grain per tablet) caffeine, and desiccated thyroid (approximately one-fourth of a grain per tablet).

The article was alleged to be misbranded (a) in that a circular enclosed in the carton contained false and fraudulent statements that the article was effective, among other things, as a preventive of fat; effective to produce muscle, bone, and sound flesh; effective to correct the lack of functioning of certain important glands; effective to eliminate fat and to give new life, energy, vigor, freshness, and pep, and to resist sickness and disease germs; effective to reduce and eliminate weighty, dragging, superfluous flesh, and to promote freer heart action and a cleaner and more thorough digestive action; and effective to insure normal weight; and (b) in that the statements, to wit, "No drugs of Any Kind", borne on the circulars aforesaid, and "Safely", borne on the cartons and on the envelopes containing the article, were false and misleading, in that the article contained phenolphthalein and caffeine and in that these ingredients could not be administered safely.

On March 27, 1936, a plea of nolo contendere having been entered, a fine of $50 was imposed and costs were awarded against the defendants.
